Seller Q&A

What are the operating procedures for running this business?: I don't have any official procedures

If you were going to keep the site, what steps would you take over the next 3 to 6 months to grow the income and traffic?: Ramp up content creation; Create and share new recipes and related articles; create related YouTube videos for new recipes; Repurpose YouTube videos in Vertical videos for Shorts, TikToks, and FB/IG Reels; continue existing Pinterest strategy of creating new pins for existing articles plus new pins for new recipes/articles; Expand beyond just keto recipes to incorporate other healthy ways of eating. The name Healthy Ambitions was chosen so the site wouldn't be just locked into the keto diet forever; consider compiling recipes into digital cookbooks to sell to audience; Continue adding emails to the "Forever Series" as taught in Matt Molen's "Email on Autopilot" course.

How often do you email your list?: 2x per week in an automated sequence - New subscribers are put into a Forever Series that emails out 2x per week for 43 weeks

Where does most of your income generate from?: Display ads

What is your current open rate and click rate?: Last 90 days: 44.55% open rate, 5.17% click rate
New subscribers are put into a Forever Series that emails out 2x per week for 43 weeks

Who wrote the content?: 90% of the content was written by me, the owner. 10% was written by freelance writers.

If you were shopping to buy a website, what about this site would stand out to you?: Food blogs seem to get some of the highest RPMs for display ads, so income is easy to ramp up with traffic; The food niche is always popular, but easy to grow, especially when you take a multi-media approach; The name "Healthy Ambitions" allows you to pivot into other healthy ways of eating and health topics in general; When active on social media, the healthy food and fitness niche provides lots of opportunity for affiliate products, sponsorships, etc....
